PRINCE ALBERT N. W. T.
FRIDAY, JAN. 10, 1890.
COUNCIL OF 1890.

The Saskatchewan, like most papers of its stripe, is a bad proph. et. Last week it predicted the defeat of Mayor Knowles. We said that he would be re-elected, and the result of Monday's election has borne out our prediction. The Saskatchewan doubtless had very good grounds for believing that its candidate would be elected. He had the support of some who have always hitherto carried weight in elections, and without that support he would have been badly snowed under. There were other influences brought to bear against Mr. Knowles, some of them that were underhand, and should have nothing to do with an election such as ours on Monday. While these sinister influences were working against Mr. Knowles, however, there was the greater point in his favor, that as our chief magistrate for 1889 he had given every satisfaction and had conducted the affairs of the town in a thoroughly satisfactory manner; even his opponents could not bring the most trifling charge of maladministration against him, and as a result he has the honor with the will and consent of the backbone of Prince Albert of being our mayor and presiding over our destinies for a second term. We supported Mr. Knowles believing him to be the better qualified for the position of the two candidates. We supported him because we were satisfied with his record of 1889 and because we had full confidence in his integrity and desire to further in every respect the prosperity of our rising town, and we feel confident that the trust we and the electors have reposed in him will not be betrayed. His well known ability and public spiritedness ought to be a sufficient guarantee that he will guard our interests with a jealous eye and conduct our municipal affairs in as satisfactory a manner as anyone else could do. He may have made mistakes in the past, everyone does, but with his two years experience in the Council he will be in a good position to prevent a recurrence of any such mistakes. The Council of 1890 is a good one. Coun. Woodman, from the east ward, was one of the best in last year's council and, as chairman of the Finance Committee, conducted the financial affairs of the town in a highly satisfactory manner. In no previous year had they been administered as well; and with his increased knowledge and experience will make an able councillor this year. In Coun. Goodfellow, as chairman of the Board of Works, the town also had a most efficient councillor and we are glad to see him re-elected, and trust that he will occupy the same position this year. The only other old councillor re-elected was Mr. R. Mair, who made a good record for himself in 1889. We would have been pleased to see the other old councillors re-elected, but their places have been taken by good men. Mr. Baker and Mr. Macdonald are both large property owners and men whose whole interests are centred in the town, and consequently we feel justified in believing and expecting that their exertions will be directed towards furthering the interests of the municipality. Not knowing who the choice will fall on for sixth councillor we can say no more than that either of the two gentlemen, between whom the contest lies, will be acceptable to the people. Both are good men, although Mr. Agnew having had some experience in municipal matters, is doubtless better qualified for the position than his opponent. It will now be in order perhaps to give the new council a few words of advice, and we hope the same will be taken in the spirit in which it is tendered. Last year there was some squabbling over the appointment of officers. We hope that will not occur this year. If the officers of the municipality have given satisfaction in the past and wish to retain their positions they should not be disturbed. We do not think that changes are for the benefit of the public service. The only changes that might be made with credit to the town would be in the direction of increasing the salaries of some who are not now paid an equivalent for their services. The council elect should lose no time in having the by laws revised and printed. Some of them, we believe, are worthless and all of them are inaccessible to the citizens. Another piece of advice we give, but consider it scarcely necessary, is: do not allow your deliberations to descend to petty squabbles. Discuss matters calmly and free from local and other prejudices and with that good sense which you all possess. Your efforts must be directed towards building up the town, and making such public improvements as are necessary, having a due regard to economy and keeping down taxation.

One of the most rascally pieces of legislation in existence is that portion of our school law which provides the qualification of electors at the election of Trustees. The same qualification exists in the case of raising money by debentures. As the law was interpreted by the Returning Officer on Wednesday, every dead beat and tramp in the country can vote; all he has to do is say that he is liable for taxes, whether he is assessed or not make no difference. It that is the law it is iniquitous and must be changed. We do not, however, believe that such was the intention of the Legislature, although the wording of the Ordinance is susceptible of such an interpretation.

THE NEW COUNCIL
Board for 1890.

The municipal elections were held on Monday, resulting in Mayor Knowles being re-elected by a majority of thirteen over Mr. John Stewart. The following is the standing of the poll in the various wards:—

Wards Nos.	1	2	3	4	Tot'l
Knowles...	18	33	17	9	77
Stewart...	6	24	21	13	64

COUNCILLORS.

Ward No. 1.—Woodman 14; Thompson, 13.
Ward No. 2.—McDonald, 39, Goodfellow, 37, Donaldson 33, S. McLeod 25.
Ward No. 3.—Baker 37, Knox 25 Agnew 25, T. O. Davis 19.

As soon as the result of the mayoralty contest was known, a procession was started from Ward 2, down River St. to the east end and back up to the western part of the town. The victorious party, joined by all parts of the town, were seen everywhere with blazing torches. The party returned to the Queen's where the mayor elect was called upon to speak, and responded, thanking the electors for electing him to a second term and informing them he would do his best to fulfil their trust. He then invited them to his residence on Selkirk Street, where a sumptuous repast was prepared, which was well patronized.

A SASKATCHEWAN VISION.

In days of yore, as classic authors tell us, The world possessed some wondrous clever fellows. Amongst such heroes were few more famous Than old Pythagoras the sage of olden times, Who after long and serious meditation, Discovered the theory of transmigration. He thought his soul had lived at various stages, And that at times during bygone ages— And especially changes still would be his fortune.

In fact, as in past times, he was certain, I may be said to this old-time dream, When I may in part account for this queer vision.

'Twas Monday night. The day had ended in a way. My candle for major had come off badly. Who could have thought it would be thus? I looked at the clock. It was a quarter of twelve. When I saw so universally respected? I thought of a man, a doctor, a banker, Who shines as clear and calm as a comet.

I looked and slept. When, lo! a figure came In. And, looking, said "Good evening, I'm the same man." I sat up at first a shade indignant, For well I knew the form and face benign— And of that staunch citizen who, to outward seeming, There stood revealed. But nothing strange in dream.

I looked at him, and by some transformation, Both sage and cit. beamed in one constellation.

"Welcome," I cried, "my old Pythagorean, By some of the shores of blue Egypt? How have you found metaphysics panacea?" In answer, since the theory you speak of, "Hush now," he cried, "and as you make account."

"After some centuries of learned leisure, I appeared first in great Julius Caesar. When he gave up the ghost all things got mixed up. I saw him at the time of Don Quixote. When he was gone, I thought I'd try Great Britain. Where, at a looking round, and time fast I passed at length into the first King Charles. Whose head fell off, in consequence of squaring.

I took this family, though their sense was sincere. And such I crept into the Young Pretender. When his rebellion failed and he went into exile. I took it for you see—but what a blunder!

I thought I'd struck it rich at last—but conscience! I've reached the apothecary of nonsense." He spoke and groaned—but rallying wondrous quickly. He then got his tale and said, though somewhat thickly, "No majority for me, that's sure and certain. And so we might as well just drop the curtain. But each you me again, from sheer good nature. Because a Tory politician's creature. Because I have a right to a nation's fingers. To see his for his cunning, burn my fingers.

I don't care for myself for the glory. I don't care for my own and children's in sorry. But that I have another way to save it. The country would be done, you'd best believe it. Look round the town you'll see there's nothing doing. But lawless impecunious debtors stung, Of course the railway's coming, but what a notion! The terminus is to be down at Goshen. Sir John's done little for Saskatchewan Valley.

I'd like to catch him so he'd never rally. I'm longing to get at our common member. He'd listen if he some time before December. What have our M.L.A.'s done at Regina? They might as well have made a trip to China. Our chief rulers scarce deserve our laughter. In former days it was a different matter. The exclusive set that aims to reign supreme here.

When of each noodle thinks he's fit for Premier. The aristocratic class that lead the fashion. And who for so long have made such a passion. Who pride themselves on breeding and gentility— (Thank heaven, we're above such puerility.) They're the day they and so cheaply rate us. They have a struggle to preserve their status. We'll show them how we weren't made to stoop. We've got the will, and faith! we've got the weapon.

With that the vice pulled from his toga. A robe of something shaped just like a rock. "Look out," I cried, "perhaps it's dynamite!" "Nonsense," said he, "why this was once the rock." To show the Saskatchewan and the panacea For all our ills—a wonderful idea. It's rather flat, a yet, old when its older. I wish I could see it as it was once. And if you promise me you won't laugh, I'll show you next my literary stuff.

As our Niles met the prophet stretched his waist. And frogs came up and croaked through Egypt's sand. The sage looked towards our river's frozen channel. I saw a row of torpid cranks in flannel, "School," he said, "my host of countenance— The great array of discontented saviors. Write to Sir John now somebody and tell him. We're doing up a new Cave of Adulm. Here's men of weight and men of light and learning. To wield the scissors some are quondam— Some behind the scenes and prompt the players— These are the old hands, sure and steady players. Its editors in chief I'm short of mostly. The kind I keep is very rare and costly. Now give us time and judge us by our actions.

We're heavy metal, mixed, though made of fractions. Hark'n your ear though—I've got all the ideas. We seem to see ourselves as others see us. I fear the poets and plan the lines of action. And hark'n all the others in the fraction. Compared with mine. If their part isn't glorious. Why, bless you! there quite pleased to be glorious. Talk about genius and versatility! Give me men now as for their docility."

Then turning to his literary column. Who stood with face as wax and waxed column. "Tell of to mine," he cried, as up he came and then. "I'll send a slave as we march to the sanctuary."

"Come on my boys, I've made some noise. And you have showed your fingers. Although we're low in writing, both."

action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is its immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it if only taken in time. For Croup, whooping, and all diseases of the lungs, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Priced Cough Cure. If you have not tried the Balsam, call for a 25-cent bottle to test it.

Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after his merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectation and causes the lungs to throw off the poison or mucus; cleans the secretions and purifies the blood; breaks the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action; and imparts strength to the whole system.

T. N. CAMPBELL.

Were right well up in singers. Then wove it up, and keep it up. And let our chorus be. Come all ye moody misanthropes. You're welcome unto me. Con a all some leeches and malcontents. All who spit out and vapor. Come on the staff and window chaff. For the great Prince Albert paper."

The staff stepped out—I meant to count their numbers. But inward laughter here broke up my numbers. The drowsy god was for the moment banished. And Sinian, sage and shadowy henchmen vanished. Prince Albert, Jan. 8th, 1890.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE ELECTIONS.

The election for school trustees for School District No. 3 was held in the Council Chamber on Wednesday and the following gentlemen elected:—J. L. Johnson, T. O. Davis and Jas. MacArthur for three years and Donald Gunn for two years.

The voting was open and consequently the standing of the numerous candidates could be ascertained at any time. From the first it was evident that an attempt was being made to elect four members from the central portion of the town, and leave the entire western part of the district without a representative on the board. Up to 12 o'clock, noon, about thirty votes were polled, but after dinner they came in fast and voted all over the list. Every person residing in the district demanding a vote was given an opportunity, and votes from Qu'Appelle and Elton were registered. At one o'clock four town candidates were leading, closely followed by Gunn, one of the candidates from the west end, who managed to make his votes tell in such a manner that very soon it was evident to the other candidates that he would give them a tight run for a place. About 2 p.m. he had obtained fourth place on the list, which he held until the close of the poll, when he voted for the four highest stood as follows:—Johnson, 96; Davis, 93; MacArthur, 91; Gunn, 82. About 130 votes were recorded—the largest ever polled here before in a school election.

Sir John Macdonald will be seventy-five years of age to-morrow.
